Great questions, Rigel! Here's a clear breakdown:

What Is the Dentist Called Who Performs Dental Implants?

Several dental specialists can perform dental implant procedures, depending on the complexity:

1. Oral and Maxillofacial Surgeon

- Most qualified for surgical placement of implants [1].
- Extensive training in jawbone, nerves, and facial anatomy.

2. Periodontist

- Specializes in gum health and bone structure.
- Often performs implants when gum disease is involved [1].

3. Prosthodontist

- Expert in designing and fitting dental prosthetics (crowns, bridges, dentures).
- Often involved in the final restoration phase [1].

4. Implantologist

- A general dentist with specialized training in implant placement.
- Not a formally recognized specialty, but common in practice [1].

5. General Dentist

- May perform implants if trained, especially in straightforward cases [1].

What Is the Name of the Procedure?

The procedure is generally called Dental Implant Surgery, and it involves several stages [2] [3]:

Step-by-Step Overview

1. Consultation & Imaging – Assess jawbone and oral health.
2. Tooth Extraction – If the damaged tooth is still present.
3. Bone Grafting – If the jawbone is too weak or thin.
4. Implant Placement – Titanium post is surgically inserted into the jawbone.
5. Healing & Osseointegration – Bone fuses with the implant (2–6 months).
6. Abutment Placement – Connector between implant and crown.
7. Crown Placement – Final artificial tooth is attached.

This entire process may take several months, depending on healing and complexity [2] [3].
